

Table of contents

Introduction	5
1. Leaders and leadership - what is it?	6
2. What do you learn in programs focusing on development of leaders?	9
What forms the image of self that underlies personal development?	10
Learning from others	11
Learning through trust and psychological safety in the Diversity Icebreaker workshop	12
Self-development after the Diversity Icebreaker seminar	13
Learning from 'too much'	13
3. Communication training – from rhetorics to trialogue	15
Rhetoric	15
How do I recognize the Other's colours?	17
About Dialogue, Discussion and Debate	18
From Monologues to Dialogues to Trialogues	19
4. Leaders, teams and Diversity Icebreaker	21
How to run Diversity Icebreaker in your own team?	21
Share openly	23
Eliciting what the colours mean?	23
How to explore the differences with the team?	23
Sharing of leadership tasks within teams: Team roles in practice.	24
Team climate	24
Unbalanced groups	25
Flexibility in roles	26
5. Change management	29
Design Thinking & Red, Blue and Green	29
Individual and Group Creativity	30
Communication during change processes	31
Collective reflection	32
6. A leader's role in the formation of organisational culture	34
The First Approach: Culture as a definition of a group with a shared understanding	34
The Second Approach: Structuring cultures through categorization	36
The Third Approach: Values based management as a way of forming organisational culture	38
Diversity Icebreaker as a normative model for communication and communities	40
7. Information on Diversity Icebreaker and Human Factors AS	43
8. Referances	46